

IPL Match Data – Assignment 3

Background

We are working with an IPL 2017 dataset (Indian domestic cricket league). We have extracted this data in the form of a .csv file from kaggle. Then we have proceeded to convert this data from 0th Normal form to the 3rd Normal form through logical reasoning and elimination of redundancies and the partial dependencies. We have checked for the validity, completeness and correctness of this data.

Abstract

Now, we have converted our SQL database that we created previously to NoSQL using the ProjectB database. We have combined the 'Player' and 'Team' tables into a single 'Player_Team' collection. Also, we have combined the 'Venue', 'Match' and 'Result' tables into a single 'Match_Result' collection. The NoSQL database uses MongoDB. Then we have extracted tweets from twitter which contain relevant hash tags for the IPL 2017 season. Then, there is an explanation of the trending and popular tweets and users and how it provides an insight on the season.

Code

Using the database ProjectB to create collections in NoSQL from the tables in SQL.

Creating collection Player_Team and Match_Result

db.createCollection('Player_Team')
```

```
db.createCollection('Match_Result')
```

Inserting player data into the collection Player_Team

```
db.Player_Team.insertMany([
```

Conclusion

We have successfully converted the SQL database to a NoSQL database.
